

Not sure about teletherapy?

SEE WHAT OUR CLIENTS AND CLINICIANS ARE SAYING

All my teletherapy sessions have been largely normal. I've been calling some of my clients to walk them through opening the link and getting them into the flow. It has been a pretty easy process and transition for my clients.

I am thankful AspenPointe is still having telehealth that it is still very much needed. I am impressed with how fast AspenPointe responded to the telecommuting model without having a major interruption of service.

I conducted a play therapy session via video and it was such a neat experience to see the client's environment and them interacting in it in a way I can't see in the play therapy room. Engagement and dynamic was different too due to client being even more comfortable in her own environment and able to speak more freely than I have seen before, despite a long engagement period with this client.

I am thankful for the technology we have to support our staff and clients. I don't feel alone in these new processes.
